

WISCONSIN STANDARDS FOR English Language Arts

Reading Foundational Skills Standards - Introduction

These standards are directed toward fostering students' understanding and working knowledge of concepts of print, the alphabetic principle, and other basic conventions of the English writing system. These foundational skills are not an end in and of themselves; rather, they are necessary and important components of an effective, comprehensive reading program designed to develop proficient readers with the capacity to comprehend texts across a range of types and disciplines. Instruction should be differentiated: typically developing readers will need much less practice with these concepts than readers who struggle to learn to read and/or English learners. The point is to teach students what they need to learn and not what they already know—to discern when particular children or activities warrant more or less attention.

Note: In kindergarten, children are expected to demonstrate increasing awareness and competence in the areas that follow.

Please reference Appendix 2 - Foundational Skills for definitions, explanations, and further examples of decoding, encoding, fluency, phonological awareness, phonemic awareness, the progression of skills, consonants, vowels, syllables and syllable patterns, and morphemes.

Reading Standards - Introduction

The following standards offer a focus for instruction each year and help ensure that students gain adequate exposure to a range of texts and tasks. Rigor is also infused through the requirement that students read increasingly complex texts through the grades. Students advancing through the grades are expected to meet each year's grade-specific standards and retain or further develop skills and understandings mastered in preceding grades. Reading those grade-level standards preceding and beyond the grade-level of one's teaching assignment is critical and allows educators to be responsive to students' varied needs of support or extension.

To build a foundation for college and career readiness, students must read widely and deeply from among a broad range of high-quality, increasingly challenging literary and informational texts. Through extensive reading of stories, dramas, poems, and myths from diverse cultures and different time periods, students gain literary and cultural knowledge as well as familiarity with various text structures and elements. By reading informational text, students build a foundation of knowledge that will also give them the background to be better readers. Students can only gain this foundation when the curriculum is intentionally and coherently structured to develop rich content knowledge within and across grades. Students also acquire the habits of reading independently and closely, which are essential to their future success.

ELA is an integrated discipline. Please see "Research to Build and Present Knowledge" in Writing and "Comprehension and Collaboration" in Speaking and Listening for additional standards relevant to gathering, assessing, and applying information from print and digital sources.

Anchor Standards for Reading

Overarching Statement: Read and comprehend a variety of complex literary and informational texts for many purposes (including enjoyment), including texts that reflect one’s experiences and experiences of others. This includes independently and proficiently understanding grade-level text.

Key Ideas and Details

Students will:

Anchor Standard R1:

Read closely to determine what the text says explicitly/implicitly and to make logical inferences from it; cite specific textual evidence when writing or speaking to support conclusions drawn from the text.

Anchor Standard R2:

Summarize key ideas and details in order to identify central ideas or themes of a text and analyze their development.

Anchor Standard R3:

Analyze how and why individuals, events, and ideas develop and interact over the course of a text.

Craft and Structure

Anchor Standard R4:

Interpret words and phrases as they are used in a text, including determining technical, connotative, and figurative meanings, and analyze how specific word choices shape meaning or tone.

Anchor Standard R5:

Analyze the structure of texts, including how specific sentences, paragraphs, and larger portions of the text (e.g., a section, chapter, scene, or stanza) relate to each other and the whole.

Anchor Standard R6:

Assess how point of view or purpose shapes the content and style of a text, drawing on a wide range of diverse texts.

Integration of Knowledge and Ideas

Anchor Standard R7:

Integrate and evaluate content presented in diverse media and formats.

Anchor Standard R8:

Delineate and evaluate the argument and specific claims in a text, including the validity of the reasoning as well as the relevance and sufficiency of the evidence.

Anchor Standard R9:

Analyze and evaluate texts using knowledge of literary forms, elements, and devices through a variety of lenses and perspectives.

Writing Standards - Introduction

Writing at its heart is about communication. Thus, modes of writing, such as the ones outlined in the following standards, must be taught as means of communication, and not as stand-alone, isolated skills. That is, modes should be taught as ways to intervene in rhetorical contexts for a clear purpose and to a specific audience. If students know why they are writing a narrative (or argument, description, etc.) and to whom, they can more flexibly and more effectively engage with writing as a communicative act. All students have something to say. When we teach writing rhetorically, we are helping them develop their ability to say it.

To provide rigorous writing instruction that will facilitate college and career readiness, students must have the opportunity to write consistently for a variety of high- and low-stakes purposes.

- Low-stakes writing is the formative writing that is crucial to developing students' identities as writers, developing dialogic relationships through writing in community with other writers, and developing ideas and draft text for high-stakes writing. Regular low-stakes writing is crucial for high-stakes writing.
- High-stakes writing often has a more explicitly rhetorical purpose and can take various forms, including but not limited to: conveying information in professional contexts, proposing a solution to a pressing social problem, writing with and for community groups, developing a polished literary work, writing for standardized assessments, and research-based writing to intervene in scholarly conversations.

In this writing section, the standards focus on creative, formal, and reflective writing. Students produce argumentative, informative, and narrative writing in each of these modes. These writing modes are described as:

- Creative writing: creative writing is writing in which students take the role of literary artists, using techniques associated with literary arts to entertain, discover, and convey imagined or real worlds. For instance, creative writing may include slam poetry, short stories, creative nonfiction, multimodal compositions, fanfiction, or lyric poetry.
- Formal writing: Formal writing is a flexible category that we broadly define in two ways: writing for academic inquiry and writing to engage and intervene in the social world. Writing for academic inquiry means using research, critical thinking, and analysis to address an issue in which writers have a stake for an audience. For instance, it could take the form of a research paper, presentation, or poster. Writing to engage and intervene in the social world means writing for professional, civic, and community purposes. For instance, this mode of writing could include emails, multimodal compositions, letters to the editor, argumentative essays, or campaigns with the purpose of taking action.
- Reflective writing: Reflective writing is formative writing that allows teachers and students to enter into conversation and develop ideas and thoughts together. It is often a building block to more specific rhetorical tasks.

Anchor Standards for Writing

Overarching Statement: Write routinely for a range of culturally-sustaining and rhetorically authentic tasks, purposes, and audiences over extended time frames (time for inquiry, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two).

Text Types and Purposes:

Students will:

Anchor Standard W1:

Compose reflective, formal, and creative writing, which may happen simultaneously or independently, for a variety of high-stakes and low-stakes purposes.

Anchor Standard W2:

Compose writing for a variety of modes to examine and convey complex ideas and information clearly and accurately through the effective selection, organization, and analysis of content.

Anchor Standard W3:

Select and utilize tools and strategies to develop effective writing appropriate for purpose, mode, and audience.

Production and Distribution of Writing

Anchor Standard W4:

Make intentional and informed decisions about development, organization, and style, to produce clear and coherent writing that are culturally-sustaining and rhetorically authentic to task and purpose.

Anchor Standard W5:

Plan, revise, and edit to make informed and intentional decisions to produce clear and coherent multimodal writing in which the development, organization and style are appropriate to task, purpose and audience.

Anchor Standard W6:

Use print and digital technology to produce and publish writing and to interact and collaborate with others.

Inquiry to Build and Present Knowledge

Anchor Standard W7:

Conduct short as well as more sustained student-driven inquiry, demonstrating an understanding of the subject under investigation.

Anchor Standard W8:

Gather relevant information from multiple print, digital, and community sources, assess the credibility and accuracy of each source, and follow a standard citation format.

Anchor Standard W9:

Draw evidence from literary or informational texts to support analysis, reflection, and inquiry.

Speaking and Listening Standards - Introduction

These standards are directed toward developing students' abilities to productively participate in communicative exchanges. Productive participation means that students are able to communicate in large group, small group, and one-on-one exchanges with varied audiences, for varied purposes, and in varied situations; can respond to and develop what others have said; can contribute accurate, relevant information; and can analyze and synthesize a multitude of ideas in various domains. Students must have ample opportunities to take part in a variety of conversations and communicative exchanges in order to practice and apply these standards. Some standards repeat from grade-level to grade-level in recognition of the fact that students' understandings develop and deepen over time. The ultimate goal of these standards is that students are able to understand and make flexible choices in their use of language in order to meet their communicative goals with varied audiences, for varied purposes, and in varied situations.

Please reference the "Overall Structure of the Document" for definitions and explanations of standardized English and communicative competence.

Anchor Standards for Speaking & Listening

Listen to understand and adapt speech to a variety of purposes, audiences, and situations in order to meet communicative goals. Be able to justify intentional language choices and how those choices differ for culture and context.

Comprehension and Collaboration Students Will:

- Anchor Standard SL1: Prepare for and participate effectively in a range of conversations and collaborations with diverse partners, building on others' ideas and expressing their own clearly and persuasively.
- Anchor Standard SL2: Integrate and evaluate information presented in diverse media and formats, including visually, quantitatively, and orally.
- Anchor Standard SL3: Evaluate a speaker's point of view, reasoning, and use of evidence and rhetoric.

Presentation of Knowledge and Ideas

- Anchor Standard SL4: Present information, findings, and supporting evidence such that listeners can follow the line of reasoning and the organization, development, and style are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience.
- Anchor Standard SL5: Make strategic use of digital media and visual displays of data to express information and enhance understanding of presentations.

Language Standards - Introduction

The language standards are directed toward developing students' understanding and working knowledge of how language functions and how it functions differently depending upon culture and context. This includes conventions of standardized English grammar, usage, and mechanics, as well as expanding vocabulary and appreciating that words have literal and nonliteral meanings, shadings of meaning, and relationships to other words. These standards are not meant to be practiced or applied in isolation, but to be applied when composing, creating, and speaking, meaning they must be applied to the writing and speaking standards so that students meet their communicative goals. These standards are also meant to be applied to the reading and listening standards so that students are able to more fully comprehend and analyze the meaning of varied texts. Some standards repeat from grade-level to grade-level in recognition of the fact that students' understandings develop and deepen over time. The ultimate goal of these standards is that students are able to understand and make flexible choices in their use of language and conventions in order to meet their communicative goals with varied audiences, for varied purposes, and in varied situations.

Please reference the "Overall Structure of the Document" for definitions and explanations of standardized English, code-meshing, and communicative competence.

Anchor Standards for Language

Demonstrate an understanding of how language functions in different cultures and contexts. Apply this knowledge to meet communicative goals when composing, creating, and speaking, and to comprehend more fully when reading and listening. Be able to justify intentional language and convention choices and explain how those choices differ for culture and context.

Knowledge of Language

Students Will:

Anchor Standard L1:

Apply knowledge of language to understand how language functions in different contexts, to make effective choices for meaning or style, and to comprehend more fully when reading or listening.

Vocabulary Acquisition and Use

Anchor Standard L2:

Determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words and phrases in grade-level reading and content; use context clues, analyze meaningful word parts, consult general and specialized reference materials, and apply word solving strategies (for meaning) as appropriate.

Anchor Standard L3:

Demonstrate an understanding of figurative language, word relationships, and nuances in word meanings.

Anchor Standard L4:

Demonstrate an ability to collaboratively and independently build vocabulary knowledge when encountering unknown words including cultural, general academic, and discipline-specific terms and phrases; use vocabulary appropriate to the context and situation.

Conventions of Standardized English

Anchor Standard L5:

Discern when and where it is appropriate to use standardized English, and demonstrate contextually appropriate use of the conventions of standardized English grammar and usage when writing or speaking.

Anchor Standard L6: Discern when and where it is appropriate to use standardized English, and demonstrate contextually appropriate use of the conventions of standardized English capitalization, punctuation, and spelling when writing.
